Imagine you are in a boat far out at sea. Suddenly, you hear a  whale loud, deep, and beautiful song.

Just as you are starting to enjoy it, the song ends. Then, it 16 again. Who is out there making such music?

It sounds like the music that people make. 17 this music is actually(实际上) made by some species of whales. According to scientists, some whales 18 their feelings of loneliness through these songs. They may even sing the songs to show their 19 over the loss of a loved one.

Each of these whale songs can last from a few minutes to half an hour, and it is then 20. The singing can go on for hours, or even days. It is very loud, and can be heard over great distances. What is more 21 is that whales from the same social group sing the same song at the same time even when they are very far apart(相隔). On the other hand, whales that belong to different social groups sing different songs even when they are 22. The music may change over time, but whales belonging to the same group 23 sing the same songs. Research shows that this helps the whales to communicate important information to one another within the group.

Although scientists have been studying whale songs for a long time, they continue to 24 why whales sing. They haven't found out the complex meanings of these songs. But maybe this is not a bad thing, for the 25 of nature often lies in its mystery. And the mystery could be part of the reason why the song sounds so beautiful to the human ear.

Cast of Characters: Narrator, Villager, Shoemaker, Coyote, Beekeeper.

Narrator: Coyote is a trickster. He loves to disobey the rules and play tricks on people.

Coyote

Villager: Coyote, you are always scaring our farm animals. It's time for you to stop!

Narrator: The villagers decide to catch Coyote and lock him up. But Coyote has confidence in himself. He knows that if he does a good deed, the villagers will not want to catch him.

Coyote: Shoemaker, I can help you.

Shoemaker: How?

Coyote: I see you have made some special shoes for Beekeeper's daughter.

Shoemaker: That's right. She will wear them for a ceremony at school. She is going to graduate this year.

Coyote: I will deliver the shoes to Beekeeper for you.

Narrator: So Coyote takes the shoes and heads to Beekeeper's house. He hopes the villagers will want to reward him for his kindness. Suddenly, Coyote sees Beekeeper coming down the path carrying a big pot. On the front is a picture of a bee.

Coyote: That bee is a symbol. There must be honey(蜂蜜) in that pot. Yum!

Narrator: Coyote waits patiently for Beekeeper. Then Coyote drops the shoes to distract Beekeeper.

Beekeeper: Why are these shoes on the ground?

Narrator: When Beekeeper puts down her pot of honey, Coyote quickly grabs it and eats some honey.

Coyote: Mmm. Sticky and delicious. Wait, what's this? A fly(苍蝇) is stuck on my snout!

Narrator: Coyote rolls on the ground to get the fly off, but his sticky fur gets covered with twigs and leaves. Some villagers see Coyote and think he is a monster. They run away.

Villager: There was a monster covered in leaves and sticks. Where did it go?

Coyote: That was no monster. It was me, Sticky Coyote. I was covered with honey and died leaves.

Narrator: When Coyote tells them what he has done, the villagers laugh.

Villager: What would we do without you, Coyote? You make us laugh. Of course you can stay in our village.

Coyote: Thank you, friends. I am happy to stay. I will try not to cause so much trouble.

Narrator: Since then, Coyote often helps the villagers. He even protects them sometimes. Every now and then, however, he still loves to play a good trick.

- B. He plays tricks on the villagers.
- C. The villagers catch him and lock him up.
- D. The villagers need his help and protection.

C

Ryan and Ahmed sat on their bicycles at the start of the cyclo-cross course. Ahmed had been competing in cyclo-cross for three years, but this was Ryan's first race. He wished he could remember everything Ahmed had taught him.

Ryan reviewed the last six months in his mind. From the moment Ahmed had first asked whether he would like to try the sport, Ryan had been excited. Ahmed helped Ryan find safety gear. He also explained the importance of practising and set up a plan for the two friends to practise together.

Practising was hard. Ryan soon grew bored with working on the same skills over and over. He was ready to race! Ryan ended up skipping (不参加) many of the practices. When Ryan did go to practices, he spent more time doing tricks with his bike instead of listening to Ahmed's tips.

"Now the real fun begins," Ryan thought as he sat at the starting line.

"You need to get serious," Ahmed warned. "Cyclo-cross can be dangerous."

Bang! The starting gun went off. The boys rushed off the starting line. Ryan saw the first obstacle(障碍) ahead. It was a series of small hurdles.

"Here I go!" Ryan shouted when he reached the hurdles. He jumped off his bike and landed hard on his foot. Next, he had to get his bike onto his shoulder. Ryan could not remember what Ahmed said about shouldering the bike. He tried to pick it up by the wheels but dropped it. Finally, he got his bike off the ground. As he ran, he tried to balance the bike on his shoulder. The bike was heavy, and his ankle hurt. Before he knew it, he was lying face-down in the mud.

"Are you okay?" Ryan heard his friend ask. Ahmed reached down to help Ryan. Ryan was thankful that Ahmed cared more about him than about the race. He caught Ahmed's hand and stood.

"Ouch!" Ryan cried. It hurt to put weight on his ankle. “You were right, Ahmed. Cyclo-cross is about more than strength and speed. Can we spend a few more months training together? I want to finish my next cyclo-cross race!”

32. What’s the main purpose of Paragraph 3?
- A. To provide more information about cyclo-cross.
 - B. To show Ryan’s efforts in practising cyclo-cross.
 - C. To introduce the safety rules of the cyclo-cross race.
 - D. To leave clues about why Ryan failed in the cyclo-cross race.
33. Which of the following best describes Ahmed?
- A. Curious but lazy.
 - B. Friendly but impatient.
 - C. Organised and helpful.
 - D. Confident and humorous.
34. What may happen next according to the passage?
- A. Ryan will end his friendship with Ahmed.
 - B. Ryan will become serious and train harder.
 - C. Ryan will skip more of the cyclo-cross practices.
 - D. Ryan will certainly win the next cyclo-cross race.
35. What can be the best title for the passage?
- A. Safety First, Friendship Second
 - B. Cyclo-cross—Strength and Speed
 - C. A Lesson Learned the Hard Way
 - D. Six Months Spent on the Practice

D

You can volunteer with three or four friends to do a team experiment(实验). First, you need to know a little about the water cycle. The water cycle starts when the sun heats ocean water. The sun converts, or changes, the water into water vapour. The sun and wind cause the water vapour to rise into the air. Water vapour cools off in the atmosphere(大气层), or the air that surrounds Earth. Then it changes to drops of water. The drops then cluster, or hold together, forming a cloud.

The water in the cloud falls as rain or snow. It may fall back into the ocean, or it may fall on land. If it falls on land, it finally works its way back to the ocean as a water overflow called run-off.

As you begin your experiment, remember this amazing fact. The amount of water on Earth now is the same as it was in the past and will be in the future. About 71% of Earth’s surface is water. This includes not only the water in oceans, rivers, and lakes. It also includes the water in clouds, rain, snow, and groundwater and in the icy areas at the North and South Poles.

Now make a model of the water cycle with a partner or small group. Use the instructions below:

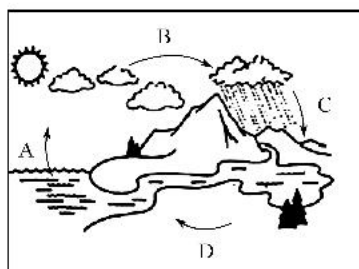

- Fill cup about halfway with water.
- Add red food colour to the water and stir.
- Use the marker to show water level.
- Put the cup in the bag and seal it.
- Put the bag in a sunny window.

After you finish making the water cycle model, watch carefully what happens to the water in the cup. Check the mark showing the water level. You should see that the water level becomes gradually lower. You should also begin to see small drops of water on the sides and bottom of the bag. The water is evaporating(蒸发) from the heat and then changing from the gas created by evaporating to water drops on the sides of the bag. The drops run down the sides and will begin to collect at the bottom. This is what happens when the sun heats the ocean.

Water vapour rises and forms clouds. The drops running down the sides of the bag are like rain falling on the Earth.

36. In which part does “run-off” appear in the picture?

The Water Cycle

37. What does the underlined word “This” in Paragraph 3 mean?

- A. Earth’s surface.
- B. The water on the Earth.
- C. Your experiment.
- D. This amazing fact.

38. How does the writer introduce the way of making the water cycle model?

- A. By showing the steps in order.
- B. By explaining cause and effect.
- C. By comparing and contrasting.
- D. By providing the examples in detail.

39. What can we learn from the experiment?

- A. Successful experiments need a lot of time and hard work.
- B. Simple experiments can also help understand science well.
- C. Students do the experiment in order to show their team spirit.
- D. Students know the amount of water on the Earth from the experiment.

40. From which is the passage most probably taken?

- A. A storybook.
- B. A book review.
- C. A science magazine.
- D. A tourist guide.

五、阅读填空(共 20 小题;每小题 1 分,满分 20 分)
A)请认真阅读下面短文,并根据所读内容在文章后表格中的空格里填入一个最恰当的单词。
注意:每个空格只填 1 个单词。

Project-based learning, or PBL, is a teaching method in which students work on a project with the goal(目标) of answering a real-world question or solving a practical problem. PBL requires students to use skills such as critical thinking, problem solving, creativity, and collaboration. Moreover, students are proud of their work because they will need to present their ideas to an audience(观众). PBL leads to the creation of a product. An important part of PBL is audience feedback and comments(评论).

PBL can fit into any subject area. In social studies, for example, students can research the history and culture of their community, exploring a festival for the community, which includes traditional costumes, food, art, and music.

In Maths, students can make a quilt(被子) with symbols of their community's heritage. This project joins knowledge of geometry, art, and history together. It would require maths skills to measure the material used to make the quilt. The quilt could be displayed at a country fair or a school meeting.

In language arts, students could team up with a school from a different culture. First of all, they could exchange information through a class website. Then they could pack items that represent their school or culture. Students would give a description of each item and why it is relevant. Finally, the students could exchange the packages through the mail and ask follow-up questions about the items they received.

In science, students could research plants, and they could use their findings to build a habitat(栖息地) in the school garden. This may include removing weeds, adding plants to attract butterflies, and building bird feeders.

An important part of PBL is that failure is understood to be a basic part of the learning process. One of the goals of PBL is to make efforts productively and work through problems. All schools and educators should accept PBL!

Project-Based Learning
Introduction	PBL requires students to work on a 56 by solving a practical problem. The audience feedback and comments make a 57 to it.
58 of practical use in some subjects	Students can research the history and culture of their community through a traditional 59 for it.
	Maths skills and knowledge of some 60 subjects can be joined together by making a quilt, and displaying it in 61 can bring more advantages.
	To improve language skills, students from different cultures can pack and 62 items, and then exchange them for further communication.

Project-Based Learning
	Building a habitat can help students put their findings from the research into ____ 63 ____.
Conclusion	PBL encourages students to learn through problems. It's acceptable that one might be ____ 64 ____ to complete some task in the learning process. So it's hoped that PBL will be ____ 65 ____ with all schools and educators.

B) 请根据短文内容及首字母提示, 填写所缺单词。

An excerpt(节选) from the famous classic novel Alice in Wonderland reads as follows:

“Would you tell me, please, which way I ought to go from here?” asked Alice.

“That d 66 a great deal on where you want to get to,” said the Cheshire Cat.

"I don't much care where!" said Alice.

“Then it doesn’t matter which way you go,” replied the cat.

Most of us are l 67 Alice in the above dialogue. We don't have a specific(明确的) idea of where we want to r 68 and what we want to become in life. It is said that "Good luck is the r 69 of good planning" and "Well planned is half done". To plan means to look ahead and design f 70 courses of action to be followed. Decide what e 71 you want to achieve and plan in detail when and how you are going to do a specific activity. According to Koontz & O'Donell, "Planning is d 72 what to do, how to do and who is to do it in advance(事先). Planning works as a b 73 between where we are and where we want to go. It makes possible things happen, which wouldn't otherwise happen".

So start p 74 yourselves for your future plans right away. Plan your present well so you would have nothing to r 75 in future. Now it's time for you to take important decisions!

六、书面表达(满分 15 分)
